Rare Oriental Rugs

SALE BEGINS MONDAY, ENDING POSITIVELY WEDNESDAY EVENING

WE announce fo the public that Mr. Meledonian, expert in rare ruga, will begin his exhibition and sale Monday, February 12, at our store, closing Wednesday February 14. All lovers of Oriental Rugs should be attracted by this showing of absolutely hand made guaranteed rugs-products of the Far East-and make good this opportunity afforded them, to talk direct to a man who has made this interesting subject a life study. Mr. Meledonian has been continuously associated with the rug industry from childhood and can answer any inquiry concerning the various weaves from the many rug producing villages throughout the Oriental countries, and can acquaint you with the conditions under which a rug has been woven, how it reflects the personal history of the patient maker; how his hopes and fears are woven into its curious, hap-hazard designs and colors. Even to those who value them more as articles of merchandise than objects of art, which they are, their beauty is facinating. If you are interested, either as a possible purchaser or for the mere seeing of this unusual gathering, you are cordially welcome. Your special attention is called to an 18x12 Kermenska rug, which is valued at $5,000. It is 750 years old and its equal as a work of art has never been shown in the United States. Rug section, third floor.

Daily Thought.

Every man is entitled to be valned by his best moments.-Emerson. COL. WATTERSON ON JOURNAL

Editor Henry Watterson Is one of those editors who do a great deal of their work by proxy. He travels about, has a pleasant time, and incldentally writes some mighty interesting, polished and delightful letters. His last, published in yesterday's Convier-Journal, is on how to run a newspaper, and Col. Watterson'a ideas, in the main, seem quite good, that have been wrought in the years occupied possibly the greater they had been disturbed and this in especially considering the changes Fourth Estate since Mr. Watterson reached the piunacle of fame in his profession. He may regard the modern journal through the spectacles of an "old timer," but he does not appear to miss many points, and his ldea in general is that there is much that might be improved in both American and English newspapers.

He declares in part:

"To print nothing which a prudent paterfamilias would hide from his household, to say nothing in print of a man you would not say to out on the same grounds? THE VALUE OF CHARCOAL.

Few People Know How Useful It Is in Preserving Health and Beauty.

Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disiafectant and purifier in nature, but few realize its value when taken into the human system for the same cleansing purpose.

Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better; it is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the gases and impurities always present in the stomach and intestiacs and carries them out of the system. Charcoal sweetens the breath af-er smoking, drinking or after eating onlone and other odorous vegetables. Charcoal effectually clears and improves the complexion it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and emineatly safe cathartic. It absorbs the lajurious gases which collect in the stomach and bowels; it disinfects the mouth and throat from the poison of catarrh.

All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the lington received word to this best charcoal and the most for the money is in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges; they are composed of the from these buildings, were to G. W. finest powdered Willow charcoal, and other harmless antisentics in tablet form or rather in the form of large, pleasant tasting lozenges, the charcoal being mixed with honey.

The daily use of these lozenges will soon tell in a much improved er complexion, sweeter breath and purer blood, and the beauty of it is, from their continued use, but on the contrary, great beaefit.

A Buffalo physician in speaking of the benefits of charcoal says: "I advise Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges to a serious coadition. all patients suffering from gas in tomach and bowels, and to clear the complexion and purify the breath. mouth and throat: I also believe the ise of them; they cost but twentyfive cents a box at drug stores and although in some sense a patent preparatioa, yet I believe I get more and better charcoal in Stuart's Charoal Lozeages than in any of the orlinary charcoal tablets."

CHAPTER VII. 'E more in Valley Springs, Ann's old self returned, and the scenes through which she had passed becamé as unreal as the happenings of a dream, but her sense of lajury deepened into dislike of Raymond and the life he represented. Therefore she took care not to see him as he was borne into Barnett's house. "He is nothing to me, and I must decline to be troubled by him further," she said as she was dressing to go out. Mrs. Barnett, however, was waiting and when the earriage in which he lay come to the door instead to take his hand in both of hers and make him welcome. "I'm glad you came, Rob. We are going to have you out in a few days. How do you feel?"

In his weak state he could only boy-Ishiy say: "Oh, I'm on the up grade! You and Don are mighty good to me."

Thereafter Itaymond abandoned himself to the joy of traveling back to life along such ways of wanton haviry as he had never known. He permitted himself to be walted upon, even by Mrs. Barnelt, without protest, and when Louis came stenling into the room in awe and love his heart went out to the boy as to a brother.

"Helio, younker!" he called. "You needn't walk so soft voiced. I'm worth a dozen dead men yet."

The boy's face shone. "I thought you were asleep. Can't do anything for you?"

"No; only come and sit down and talk to me. What have you been doing since you came back to the SpringsY

Lonis took a seat. "Nothing of any consequence, except to make some drown gs of the ranch. It's duli here, I want to go into the mountains."

"Yon're a wonderful youngster. Walt till I'm able to travel, and we'lt go to into the high country together." Louis clapped his hands, "Won't that he glorious? I'd rather do that than anything else in the world."

"line is your sister?" asked Raymond, with abrupt change of tone. "She is well. She's always well. We just cause in from a drive. That's the reason I wasn't here to help you Did it limit you going upstairs?" Not a bit. The hoys handled me as tenderly as a side o' pork. Let me see your drawings, will you?"

'che Loy's face glowed. "Well, you ju t wait." And he rushed away, to get thet.t.

Mrs. Barnett upon meeting Ann said, with deep feeling: "Rob's Buess has transformed him. He said to me a few moments uga: 'If you can find the mun who shot me, reward him. He has done me a great service. I am lost by a dream of hixury.' He asked after you with emotion and said he would like to thank you for your servlee to him."

Ann, listening intently, remained coldly impassive of face. "Mrs. Scribbins was the really enicient person. I have a horror of sick people, and as for wounds"- She shuddered for lack of words.

Mrs. Barnett went on: "I like to do for him, he's so grateful and so obe dient. He says just the right thing at ways. There must be good breeding buck of the man, although he never mentions his family. There's some love affair to account for his being here. He's too handsome not to have had entanglements. Don't you think so?"

"He hisisted not," replied Ann. "He begged me to consider that his life had been quite commonplace."

"I don't believe it. He couldn't be commonplace. He said to me just now, Sometimes a man must hear the wash of the river of death to renlize how futile he has allowed his life to become." Ills gratitude toward you is painetic." Ann frowned. "It's worse; It's oppressive. I did so little, and that little was not done with a gracious spirit. 1 didn't enjoy it then nor in retrospect."

"You mustn't let him know that. His worship of you positively irradiates his face, and he's very landsome. He insists that you were herole."

Ann grew a little petulant, "I wish you wouldn't try to make mountains out of molchills. It was a most unplensant experience, and I wish to forget it, not to have it dinned in my ears forever. My going was folly, and my stay in that ghastly place was a torment. Please allow me to put it out of my memory."

Ann had a moment of bitter homesickness, a feeling she had never known before. This mad trip into the west with a reckless and supersensitive boy grew each moment more disastrous. At the moment she fairly luited her coushis and nil the guests at their table and louged, with unspeakable hunger, for the roll of carriages on Fifth avenue and the glitter and tnamit of Broadway. The stony, uninterested stare of her mother was better than this prytug, this overstrained interest on the

As for Raymond, he had been momentarily interesting as a cowboy, and v.l.en he was lying at the brink of the grave he had ussumed tragle value, but now that he was on the way to recover, he cease I to interest. A Princeton man tells of a conversa tion that took place between the coach of a football eleven and one of the players. An Important game was soon to be played, and the coach was of course most auxions that every player should be in the best physical condition. But to his great disgust one of the men upon whom a great deal depended if the great game was to be won seemel to be in "bad form." Taking him aside, the couch had the following "heart to heart talk" will the recalcitrant:

"See here, you're not looking so good. Muscles flabby and wind bad-awfully bad. What's the matter? Been drinking anything?"

"Not a drop." "Then you must be smoking." "Haven't touched a pipe, elgar or elgrette since the training began." "Studying?"

"Well, yes—a little."

Whereupon the coach gave vent to a snort of disgnst. "See liere, you've got to stop that! Do you want to lose the Draughon's THE BEST. Call or send for 11, game?"-Harper's Weekly.

A Shorthand Blunder. One day a lawyer dietated a special writ of fieri faclas to lils shorthand clerk and, being in a harry, rushed off to court with the transcript as soon as it was made without reading it. Docket Is Congested. Madisonville, Ky., Feb. 10.-Resolutions were adopted by the bar of Hopkins county and forwarded to the legislature, asking for some kind of reller from the present congested condition of the circuit court docker. The resolutions state that litigation is constantly increasing, that cases are piling up on the docket, that three-fourths of every term is taken up la the trial of criminal cases, making it necessary for civil cases assured, clear the docket.
